
These words describe the approximated 86,000 licensed or certified EMS providers in California. They demonstrate these qualities every day by coming to the aid of others when they are most in need and working to ensure that the EMS system operates well. However, each year, due to circumstance or extraordinary effort, certain individuals shine the brightest.

On July 1, 2021, EMSA held a virtual awards ceremony to present thirty-eight (38) exceptional individuals with California EMS Awards for their contributions to the state’s EMS system during the year 2020. Typically, the department holds a formal reception at the end of each year in San Francisco, at the Marines Memorial Club. EMSA elected to hold a virtual, online California EMS Awards ceremony – a first for this event – due to the impacts from COVID-19, and it was a resounding success.

The Medical Reserve Corps (MRC) is a national network of unpaid volunteers, organized locally to improve the health and safety of their communities. MRC units engage volunteers to strengthen public health, improve emergency response capabilities, and build community resiliency. MRC units prepare for and respond to natural disasters, such as wildfires, hurricanes, tornados, blizzards, and floods, as well as other emergencies affecting public health, such as disease outbreaks. They may be tasked by county officials to respond as a team or as individuals in support of a public health, emergency, or disaster response. In California, there are 35 MRC Unit and 33 are in the Disaster Healthcare Volunteers (DHV) System.

In 2020 and 2021, California’s MRC Units have been integral to state disaster response efforts. More than 4,500 individual MRC volunteers deployed for COVID-19 pandemic response and medical support of wildfires across the state. Of the 26 MRC Units that have activated for COVID-19, volunteers have remarkably provided approximately 153,000 hours of support.

EMSA recently had the opportunity to ask some of the MRC units and volunteers to reflect on their experiences serving and we are happy to share their stories with you. Please take a moment to view the hyperlinks below and check out all of the amazing work volunteers have done over the past 18 months.

Carol Lindsay was identified by California Medical Assistance Teams (CAL-MAT) as a noteworthy contributor in EMSA’s COVID-19 pandemic response. To highlight her remarkable contributions EMSA student assistant Veronika Skrotskaya recently interviewed Carol Lindsay about her CAL-MAT journey.

Q: What is your regular profession?

A: My regular profession is as a Family Nurse Practitioner. I began my nursing career in 1975 when I worked as a certified nurse’s assistant in a long-term care facility on the night shift. That was when I realized I loved medicine, but I had to be more than a nurse’s aide and get off the night shift. I got my RN license in 1980 after working on nights as a CNA and going to nursing school during the day. I worked in various emergency departments over the next 12 years, including as a flight nurse on an ALS helicopter and on an ALS ambulance. I loved it but realized I was going to "age" out one of these days. Between lifting heavy patients and working long busy hours, I needed something a little less intense!

Q: How did you hear about CAL-MAT?

A: I retired in 2018 at the age of 66, but I missed the mental stimulation, so I volunteered as a nurse with Red Cross and worked in a shelter during the Camp Fire, which is when I met Susan Urbs from CAL-MAT who suggested I apply as an NP. I finished the Camp Fire response working in a CAL-MAT urgent care tent outside the shelter at Silver Dollar Fairgrounds in Chico. I loved it!
Q: What were some of the things you did while deployed during the pandemic?

A: I was deployed to Southern California to an Alternative Care Site in Riverside County in March 2020. In April, I was called by DMS Chief Craig Johnson asking if I would deploy as a Liaison to the Sleep Train Arena Alternative Care Facility between the administrative staff hired by the State of California and state agencies. I represented EMSA and CDPH and worked to connect the administrative team with hospitals and agencies and to consult with them on field hospital protocols, including admissions criteria.

Q: What was most memorable about your experience?

A: My most memorable experience was at the Sleep Train Arena. We treated people who tested positive for COVID who otherwise would have had to stay in the hospital, at times in the Emergency department for days and depending on finances, sent home with a large bill. Some would have been sent home to isolate with family, some of which were vulnerable. The State did a huge service to its residents by offering free health care and treatments. The Monoclonal antibodies and Remdesivir were free thanks to the California Department of Public Health.

Q: What would you say to others who are interested in signing up?

A: I would say to anyone interested in signing up that it will be the most memorable experience of your life. It is challenging, exhausting, exciting, and the memories will be with you for a lifetime. You will help people in times of disaster, and austerity which can be chaotic, frustrating and heart rendering. The hours are long, you will be challenged to swallow your pride, work with others from all walks of life and you will make friends for a lifetime. You will be proud of what you will do and understand what it is like to be a true hero.

For almost all State of California jobs, you will be required to take an exam. Exams might be an in-person written exercise or interview, but most commonly they are completed online. Review exam bulletins thoroughly.

After you've completed an exam, you are considered eligible to apply for that specific classification. Once you are eligible, you can start applying for vacant positions across the state. Start searching for vacancies in your eligible classification on jobs.ca.gov.

If you are contacted for a hiring interview, prepare by reviewing the duties and responsibilities on the job opportunity notice.

Q: What is your regular profession?

A: In the “real world,” I am an ER travel nurse. I have been travelling for about four years now. Prior to deploying with CAL-MAT, I was working at Cedars Sinai ER in Marina del Rey, California.

Q: How did you hear about CAL-MAT?

A: I signed up for CAL-MAT because I heard from a friend of a friend that it was an interesting job to have. At the time he was deployed working on skilled nursing facility (SNF) missions.

Q: Where were you deployed?

A: My first mission was in Imperial County at a drive-thru vaccination clinic. Since then, I have been to clinics in Amador, Nevada, Yuba, Sutter, Solano, Tuolumne, Glenn, and Lake Counties; and most recently Riverside County, where I am deployed as a Team Lead. My role here began with the task of setting up a model for EMSA’s footprint in the Entry Without Inspection (EWI) hubs that would begin to open in Southern California. My team and I set up the site from scratch, drawing from all our previous experiences at different clinics. It was an interesting transition from participating in clinics as a vaccinator, learning the administrative roles throughout the clinics, and then setting up our own.
Q: What was most memorable about your experience?

A: The most memorable experience I’ve had with CAL-MAT was at a clinic in Solano County. I had a patient in my vaccination chair ready to receive her vaccine but I was still waiting for doses to be provided. I noticed she appeared very anxious and began to make conversation to try and calm her down. She told me that a few months prior, she went to a party where she contracted COVID-19. Her father then contracted it as well and soon passed away. She said her entire family had now been vaccinated and she was the last to receive her vaccine. Sometimes when working vaccine clinics, the process becomes very repetitive, almost mechanical. This moment of vulnerability on the patient’s behalf made me stop and remember why we do what we do. No matter how small the task we are asked to do, no matter how repetitive, our actions make a difference in real people’s lives. We are all contributing in our own ways to the greater cause, and it’s important to not lose sight of that.

Q: What would you say to others who are interested in signing up?

A: To others who would consider deploying with CAL-MAT, I would say come in with an open mind and flexibility. Also, be ready to meet some of the best people you will ever work with, and don’t be surprised if you make friends along the way.
